

ABSTRACT

A method of inhibiting the growth of refractory tumors that are stimulated by a ligand of epidermal growth factor in human patients, comprising treating the human patients with an effective amount of an epidermal growth factor receptor antagonist.